WE DEDICATE OUR FIRST TALLY-HO

The stimulation of progress and growth in a state always comes from its leaders. Their foresight and wisdom in planning the course of events is reflected for countless years by benefits reaped and by continued advancement.

The adoption of coeducation for Florida's two state universities will produce lasting effects upon the youth of our state and our educational development. So with the theme of coeducation proudly displayed, we are honored to dedicate Florida State University's first Tally-Ho yearbook to Governor Millard Fillmore Caldwell under whose progressive administration coeducation became a reality.

Figuring prominently in the national scene as well as being an outstanding leader in Florida, Governor Caldwell served four terms in Congress before voluntarily retiring in 1941. A member of the foreign affairs and appropriations committees, he attended interparliamentary conferences at the Hague and Oslo, Norway, as representative of the United States Congress. After his election to governor in 1944, he served as Chairman of the National Governor's Conference, President of the Council of State Governments, and acted as chairman of many committees for the Southern Governor's Conference. Florida is fortunate to have such a vigorous and far-sighted executive.

HISTORY OF THE BEGINNING OF

No sooner had the Seminoles been chased back to the Everglades, namely the year 1822 when Florida was organized as a territory, than its progressive leaders sought to provide facilities for higher education. With amazing political rapidity legislation was finally passed in 1853 authorizing the location of the seminary east of the Suwannee in Ocala and the seminary west of the Suwannee in Tallahassee.

Although the return of the Seminoles to Tallahassee in 1947 might have been an unexpected innovation, coeducation itself is definitely not a new trend. The West Florida Seminary which incorporated some of the land and buildings formerly called Leon County Female Academy, was until 1859 open only to men. That year, however, the women staged an invasion and fought for their right to wield a cook book and darning needle. But their victory was shortlived for the men soon had to fight for the right of the magnolia and mint julep in the Civil War and WFS was converted into a military school.

The soldiers marched on and so did time. In 1882 coeducation again came to the fore, or to be more geographically exact, to Tallahassee. Enrollment reached an all-time high of seventy-four.

In 1889 there were four faculty members. The president taught: philosophy, mathematics, chemistry, physics, astronomy and political science. Student government was unknown and the catalogue stated "President and faculty will exercise a wholesome supervision over the students."

In 1897 the Naturalist's Society, Murphreean Literary Society and the Debating Society were active organizations on campus and the following year the Athletic Association came up to bat.

There were still no dormitories and students boarded in private homes. Chapel was held every morning which all students were required to attend. Church attendance was also compulsory. A student could enter the classical, literary or scientific course, but the faculty made the rest of his decisions for him. Once he got in a particular class it was very difficult to get out. He had to have the consent of the faculty to change from one of these to another and of his parents if he were a minor.

Such was life at WFS during the "Gay Nineties."

A new name arrived with the new century: Florida State College. But in 1905 this name rode out with the Buckman Bill which authorized the consolidation of the schools located in Bartow, Lake City, Gainesville, DeFuniak and Tallahassee into two state institutions, one for men and one for women. Tallahassee's offspring was christened Florida Female College. And thus began the long imprisonment of fair womanhood behind the red brick walls.

All students were required to sign an honor code. The teachers and matrons ate in the dining hall with the students. After dinner they enjoyed a social hour together before beginning the evening's work.

In 1909 the name Florida State College for Women was adopted. The seal of the three torches was first lit by members of Miss Abernathy's Art Class who burned with inspiration and school spirit.

Students were required to "Submit to such regulations as will insure faithful study and exemplary conduct." The faculty and president were the administrators of these regulations.

Mail was subject to inspection by the president or matron.

During 1912-13 a system of Student Government was inaugurated. Officers of this organization were supervised by a committee of faculty members. Athletics were also conducted by a faculty committee. There were five tennis courts and two basketball courts. Clubs were organized for walking and swimming—someone should have told them the automobile had been invented!

A candidate for admission to FSCW had to present a record for good moral character as well as a scholastic record.

In 1914 the Romance Club and the Home Economics Club were organized. Although seemingly related the Romance Club had as its members French and Spanish students.

In 1915 the Flambeau broke into print!

It was then the custom to place the students' mail in a wire basket at one end of the tiny post office. One girl would stand on a chair and call out the names. This system was uniquely labeled "mail call."

Physical education consisted mostly of exercises with Indian clubs and dumb-bells. There were four F Club members.

The favorite recreation of student government was camping. One girl was called before Student Government for cutting breakfast three times and another was campused for wearing a skirt with a split up the side.

During World War I students contributed every moment outside of class time to war work. Miss Harris, head of the home economics department, supervised the students in canning, pickling and drying the college garden products. Despite the shortage of tin cans the group was given a car load of the scarce items by the government to carry on their project. When the cans arrived, they were unloaded in a leaky old warehouse near the station. Unfortunately this warehouse was in the city limits of Tallahassee and, of course, it rained that night. In order to save the cans a group of volunteers armed with a mammoth supply of towels attempted to wipe out the trouble. By the following evening the "can-can" girls were thoroughly dried out. But the cans were saved along with the day which proves again the point: Never underestimate the power of an FSC woman.

The period between the first and second world wars was characterized by building and expansion. Enrollment increased annually and in 1941 FSCW was the third largest women's college in the United States and ranking high scholastically as well.

School spirit, augmented by the Odd-Even rivalry, reached its peak every Thanksgiving when homecoming, color rush, demonstrations and sports reigned supreme.

During World War II the students gave many hours of work to Red Cross projects and USO duty. With the end of the war FSCW students welcomed the return of veterans to their brother university at Gainesville. The numbers of returning students reached an amazing proportion but the Tally lassies failed to see the disadvantage in this. However when it was deemed necessary to install a branch of the University of Florida at Tallahassee, the girls were quick to agree that the crowded situation should by all means be alleviated.

So after forty years FSCW's Sleeping Beauties were awakened by the handsome princes, and Experiment: Coeducation got underway. Dale Mabry, a former army field, was converted by a few quick strokes of the paint brush into TBUF. Perhaps because of its noted ancestry, coeducation seemed to like FSCW as well as the rain.

Keen-sighted legislators soon realized the modernized aspects of this system and in May 1947, Florida joined the ranks of progressive states.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY—a new name and the beginning of a new history in educational development.

NEW NAMES

for a new school and a new annual

The new name glistening upon the college gates was by no means the only different moniker on campus. New names were everywhere. Bill, Bob, and Tom were as frequent on class rolls as Mary, Betty, and Sue. And even some of the girls were lucky enough to change their names. The faculty boasted many new names too. There were new names for organizations and publications. Students gave up crossword puzzles for the intriguing game of "you name it," FSU style.

As the new look in names campaign got underway, it became obvious that a worthy project was to change the name of the annual, Flastacowo, which, for the benefit of any aliens, was the abbreviation for Florida State College for Women without the conventional use of punctuation.

The first volume of Flastacowo was printed in 1910. In this edition the seniors numbering an Even dozen were complimented by a caricature and poem in addition to their formal photograph. In the senior class poem this sage advice was offered:

"Farewell, farewell! but this I tell
To thee, thou Junior batch—
Count not, I say, fair ones, count not Thy chick before 'tis hatched."

Other extensive literary accounts were inserted throughout the book including one whimsical version of a faculty meeting.

There were pictures of every organization on campus including the Loafer's Club, The Midnight Feasters, The Bandanna Tormentors and The Mary (Merry) Club composed of all the girls named Mary on campus. Their motto was "Drink and be Mary," aim, "To be Mary" and the club flower was the Mary-gold.

Group shots of the biology classes proudly displaying their woodland specimens of ferns and grasshoppers enlivened the pages.

The Flastacowo's predecessor of the FSC era was called The Argo. Less extensive in its scope, the publication had a quaint habit of labeling class photographs "a group of students." An interesting aspect of the organizations section was a group called the "Twosing Club," composed of all the "steadies" on campus. Other definite evidences of coeducation of that period were given in the sports department. Football, baseball, basketball, tennis and golf were the outstanding activities.

With this sturdy background FSU's new annual joined the chase with the resounding cry of TALLY-HO!

IN MEMORIAM

It is taught that once a man intrusted his servants with his money, giving to one five talents, to another two, and to a third, one. As it turned out, he to whom the most was intrusted made the fullest use of it.

For many years there was on our campus a true example of this parable, a man who possessed many talents and used them beyond the extent of ordinary human beings. Dr. Guy Linton Diffenbaugh had the talent for teaching, through which he created an appreciation for scholarship, lofty and rich in its humanistic implications.

As an administrator he displayed still further talents: clear-sightedness and orderliness of mind, which was exemplified by everything about him from his spotlessly neat office to his accurate perception of problems amid confusion.

Perhaps the most immediately obvious of all of his talents was his personal integrity of character and intellectual tranquility. No one's word was more heeded and respected on the campus. But the greatest talent is yet to be mentioned; Dr. Diffenbaugh possessed far beyond the measure of most men the talent for friendship. This was the quality which pervaded his ability as a teacher, as an administrator and gave meaning to the expression, "Gentleman-scholar."

So has Dr. Diffenbaugh employed his talents that they will continue to enrich our campus with dignity, courtesy and learning throughout the years. About us will remain the evidence of the ten-fold return of the talents of a great man.

The progressive building which paved the way for Florida State University is best shown by the buildings themselves.

The college gates were a gift from the class of 1916. They added much to the term "entering college," and formed a picturesque frame for the fountain in front of Westcott, a gift of the classes of 1915 and 1917. Another essential landmark in those days was the stepping stone for getting in and out of carriages and buggies by the front steps.

Before the towers of Westcott stood sentinel over the college on the hill a smaller building on the same site called College Hall housed the library, class rooms, laboratories, and offices of the President and the Board of Education.

A welcome sight to FSUers around the hours of eight, twelve and six each day, the modern dining hall has four separate dining rooms each served cafeteria style. Completed in 1940, it is famous for its specialty of the house, date delight.

1902 was the first year students could obtain both room and board on campus. East Hall for women contained a dining room and kitchen.

With the growth of FSCW a larger building was needed and in 1913 a new dining hall located adjacent to Bryan and Reynolds Hall was built. Here the food was served family style until this year when it was converted into an attractive cafeteria.

The first unit of Gilchrist Hall, named for former Governor A. W. Gilchrist was used in 1927. An addition was built in 1928. Residents of Gilchrist this year are quick to boast of their newly-decorated modern parlor.

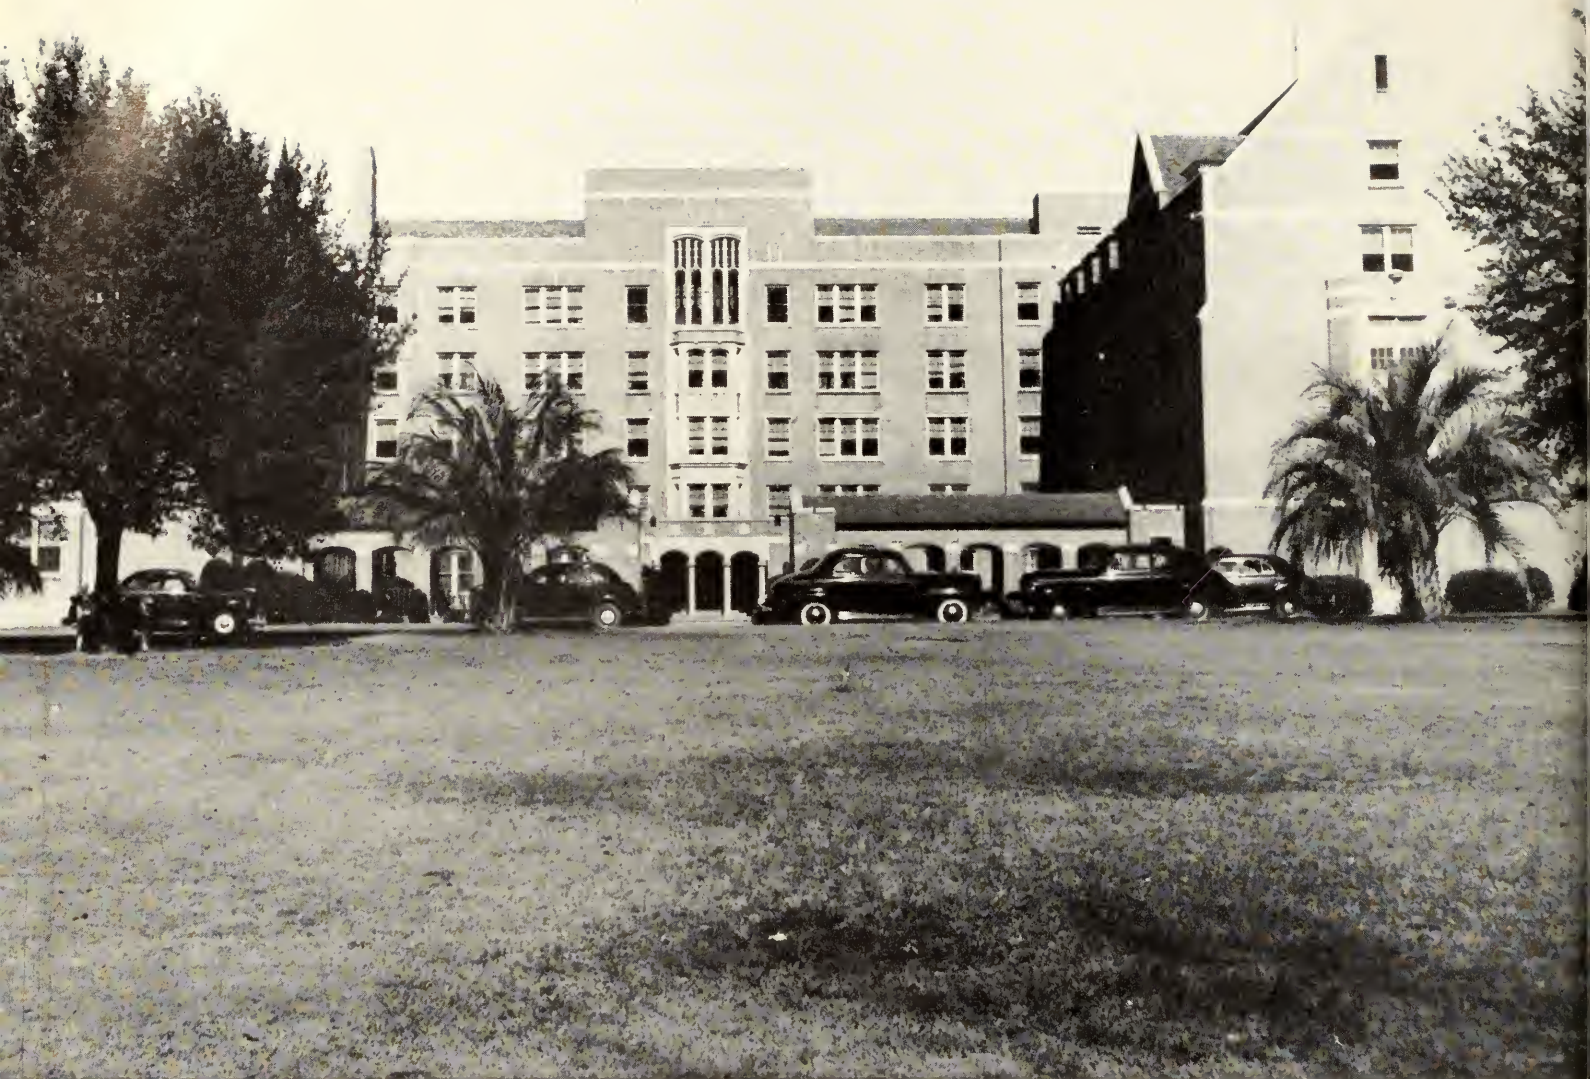

“As timeworn as the steps of Bryan” is a phrase rather timeworn itself but familiar to all FSU students. The oldest dormitory on campus was completed in August, 1908, and named for Senator W. J. Bryan from Jacksonville. In its earlier years Bryan served as the center of social functions on campus. For many years a reception for the townspeople and faculty was held in Bryan rotunda. In 1915 Bryan had its face lifted or rather its gardens sunk. The approach to the dormitory was for many years marred by a large hollow. This was filled in and an attractive center courtyard laid out.

The next addition to dormitory row was Reynolds Hall completed in 1912-13. A recreation hall was included in the new building and placed strategically near in the annex was the Infirmary.

The progress of science and the growth of FSCW demanded space for expansion and development of scientific projects, so in 1922 the Science Hall was built on the site of the women's dormitory, East Hall.

The Province of Landis, reigned over by a strange tribe who inhabit the plain called Senior Hall, was first colonized in 1940. Complete with a spacious game room, kitchen and small dining room, club rooms and sun decks, Landis is a popular spot for social functions.

The History building began its growth in 1928 and a final addition was completed in 1947. Connected with the History building is the Augusta Conradi Theatre, named for the wife of Dr. Edward Conradi, President of FSCW from 1909 to 1940. The library was formerly located on the site of the theatre, and West Hall dormitory for men stood where the History building is.

The newest addition to campus growth is Cawthon Hall completed in January of this year. Divided into north and south wings, the dormitory has a system of air conditioning. Its twin parlors are modernistically decorated and feature large windows which open on to the terrace.

The dormitory is named for Mrs. S. D. Cawthon who was matron of FSCW for many years. She was known to all the girls as "Tissie" and each year before Christmas she gave a party for the seniors.

ADMINISTRATION

As enrollment mounted with each arrival of bus, train, plane and pogo stick, the administration stood ready with newly formed offices and a vast supply of new faculty members. Not a classroom or department was left unturned. Reconstruction and new construction were everywhere. Things were certainly looking up. As a matter of fact, FSU's first year seemed to have a definite buoyancy.

With efficient foresight the administrative and academic deans had every problem carefully thought out before it arose. Under their careful eye, the student government began the tedious process of adopting a new constitution. The coordination of coeducation was advancing as if propelled by jet, yet.

The executive, judicial and legislative branches of the men's and women's governments functioned separately but were joined in purpose through the medium of university Student Council.

The foundation of coeducation is being built according to proportions that provide for campus-wide expansion over a long span of years. The completed structure will be one of great strength. It will rest firmly on the plans and provisions made by FSU's pioneers who, armed with blueprints and handbooks from universities all over the country, fought successfully the battle of Tally Forge—the forging of FSCW and TBUF into FSU, that is.

During the formation of FSU's new constitution this year, the government of the men and women students was, of necessity, separate. Women's Government Association, with Dalia Santos serving as President, was a continuance of College Government Association with a few changes to suit the surrounding developments.

Men's Government Association, under the leadership of Philip Roundtree, continued the form of student government set up for the men of TBUF.

Next year, however, when the new constitution goes into effect the office of President of University Government Association will link executive, judicial and legislative branches of WGA and MGA, although these offices will still function.

WOMEN'S SENATE

PAULINE TUTTLE

Women's Senate, led by Pauline Tuttle, worked long and hard with the gratifying results of more lenient rules for the women students. A change in rule allowing upperclassmen to be out of their rooms after third light flash provided they remain within the dormitory of their residence, was given a trial period and proved highly successful. An extension allowing students to return from weekend trips as late as twelve midnight on Sunday was another of many changes inaugurated. Composed of representatives from the women's classes, from various campus organizations and members of executive council, Women's Senate continues to be a vital instrument in forming campus government.

 2nd Row: B. Vocelle, D. Smith, J. Patterson, G. Dickie, D. Martin, J. McMillian, A. Conelly.

MEN'S SENATE

Under the leadership of Chris Holly, Men's Senate undertook many campus improvements. Organized similarly with representatives from the men's classes forming the nucleus, Men's Senate had a mammoth task in setting up rules and regulations for the men students. Using the TBUF groundwork as a basis, the men soon set up a smooth running organization which kept situation: coeducation well under control. Plans were formed through the work of Senate for the allocation of the TBUF recreational fund. Controversy between a skating rink and campus radio station arose, with the radio station receiving the favorable decision. Despite considerable handicaps, Men's Senate has functioned efficiently and smoothly.

CHRIS HOLLY

JUDICIARY

Judiciary, presided over by Chairman Irma Lee Shepherd, is the highest court of the Women's Government Association. Infractions of major college regulations are handled by this court which works in conjunction with freshmen court, upperclass court, off-campus court and day students' court. It has been Judiciary's main purpose to encourage observance and understanding of the Honor Code on which successful cooperative campus life is based.

Honor Court, composed of representatives from the Men's classes and presided over by Chief Justice Bill Meigs, deals with all infractions of the Honor Code and other college regulations among the men students. Since this organization is the only judicial body in the men's government, it has had an important job. Through the members' capable leadership, a high standard of conduct has been established within the male student body.

The Freshmen Court presided over by Neva Delgado was created to give individual attention to the students more unfamiliar with campus rules and regulations. Freshmen women are under this court's jurisdiction.

MEN'S JUNIOR-SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Rufus Jefferson and Martha Peacock

Take a men's junior and senior class and a women's senior class and the result will be the cooperative class system used by these upperclassmen at Florida State University this year. Because of the small number in the men's junior and senior classes, a combination of the two was formed with a joint president. Rufus Jefferson served in this capacity. Meanwhile the women's senior class elected Martha Peacock as their president and the two officers coordinated the activities of their classes.

ORGANIZATIONS

Coordination through organization . . . and the charge of the bright brigade moved onward as men joined the ranks of campus intellectuals recognized for their outstanding work by the honoraries.

A memorable event for the history books is the Greek invasion. Colonies of various fraternities were soon well underway with willing assistance offered by their sister sororities. Everyone was willing to a Greek that the number of social events was whirling upward to the tune of frat serenades.

The Cavaliers skipped the light fantastic in step with Cotillion Club and dances appaired more lively.

Masculine talent was write in on top in campus publications.

Religious groups attained a higher enrollment as the men affiliated with their denominations.

The expansion and addition of organizations and honoraries has helped to create student interest and participation in campus activities. The co-eds are all well aware of the meaning of co-op.

Sports

The year began with a leap and a bound when the seemingly normal editor of the newly named Tally-Ho selected her seemingly normal staff. Dip Brown, the red-hot art editor, designed the original dummy (not to be confused with the editor). While the whole campus moved around in a confused pattern having class pictures taken in arcades, old broom closets and empty trash cans, the staff marched ahead with plans for a gold leaf cover and full color sports section. The entire organization of the book was juggled around and the length of the new book increased by one hundred pages to fit the new look on campus.

Managing Editor James Tippin cleared the way for the onmoving crusaders while channeling traffic in and about the typewriters and layouts.

John Mattmuller, the sport on the staff, tackled the feat of men's athletics and produced a grand splash in football. Jane Carol Levy, his feminine counterpart edited the women's sports. Dot Butts ran into difficulties in the administration section trying to procure a picture of each and every faculty member. The feature section was changed to the wheel section and men were added to the roll. Jeanne Oldfather found that the men did not go for the "new wrinkle" in drapes; so they were photographed in tuxes. Frances Wesson and Jo Craig were first-class co-editors. After Jo deserted for a diploma winter quarter, Frances shouldered the burden of classes alone. The great mystery of local frat names was solved by Panhel (pan meaning all) editors, Gloria Albritton and Judy Rhodes. Photographers swarmed around like bees taking pictures with soda pop bottles and wax paper in the absence of the still hard-to-get items, flash bulbs and film. Copy Editor Jacquie Allen surrounded herself with a roll of wrapping paper and began to write. Anne Fielding and Jo Long poured forth their souls helping Jacquie with the wheel copy and Lonnie Burt gave out with the sports lingo. Finally they all gave out! Mel Vernon became a club woman and spent all her spare time leaping from organization to honorary without the expense of paying dues. Art Skevakis and her aide-de-midnite-lamp, Georgia

Jaeckel, produced a Panic of Antics. Publicity director Nancy Owens kept the campus alerted for the staff's strategic movements. Last, but not least, the staff discovered Columbus! Columbus B. (we think it stands for Balboa) Smith covered the business end of the book and became chief money-lender. And so with this crew on board the good ship Tally-Ho (or as we say in pure Seminole, Many-Ha-Ha) sailed off the printer's presses. Of course, this sounds utterly fantastic at this time.

Additional members of the staff included: Photographers Jane Saffold, Bob Greenberg, John Hook, Edwin Hacker; Snapshot editor Hascia Levine, assistants Stella Carter and Mary Land and art assistants Mary Fowler and Ann Holloway.

Miss Edith West served as chairman of the faculty committee which was composed of Miss Mary Mooty, Miss Martha Chapman and Dr. Chester Neilson.

FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

"Let's press this issue!" has been the unprinted law of the Flambeau throughout the year as it threw its paper-weight about crusading for coeducational development. Whether urging students to write new school songs or to attend forums on the new constitution, the "voice of the student body" has sounded off every Friday morning.

Following in the inkprints of their capable editor, Madge Pilcher, the staff has presented an impressive exhibition of verbal pictures showing our changing campus scenes. Associate Editors Joyce Petty, Laura Lee Butler and Jean Douglas, Assistant Editors Alicia Armstrong, Polly Blank, Barbara Beckman, Janice Richey and Wayne Belle and Managing Editors Jeanne Bagley and LeMoyné Cash were columns of support for Madge during the ordeal of putting the Flambeau to "bedlam" on Thursday evenings.

Proving that they were definitely the type for this field, sports columnists, Arthur Cobb and men's Sports Editor Bob Cooksey were an unbeatable team when it came to covering athletic events. With one hand on the typewriter and the other holding a magnifying glass, News Editors Margaret Cash, Bill Meigs and Jackie Story gave up-to-the-minute reporting on what's new at FSU. Feature Editors Cheryl Muster and Linda Herold and Society Editor Hazel Clarkson colored the paper with lively human interest stories and accounts of campus social functions.

We work like dogs — that's what we do, just work like dogs!

Women's Sports Editor Charlotte Snyder, Art Editor Lucy Feiden, Headline Editors Ann Tucker, Terry Sellers and Nancy Jones, Copy Editor Barbara Farrar, Proof Editor Ann Moore, Columnists Betty Wilkison and John Cash and Business Manager Margaret Blanton all aided in the task of keeping the presses rolling.

A competent staff of legmen, reporters that is, not bathing beauties, were dispersed throughout campus early each week to gather the stuff that newspapers are made of: information. A slightly new innovation in unions was a group of reporters who called themselves the Flamboyant Sophomores. In their constitution which was composed of by-lines instead of by-laws, they decreed that "the newspaper shall be red."

With an eye to national as well as campus events, the Flambeau serves faithfully as an instigator of student interest.

THE TALARIA

LAURA LEE BUTLER
Editor

With the other remnants of Florida State College for Women, the name of the campus literary quarterly publication, Distaff, which the leading journalists had leaned upon for so long, took its leave of the rainy hillside. Students wondered why Distaff must be changed until they discovered the meaning of the word: woman's work or the maternal side of the family, springing from the fact that the distaff is part of a spinning wheel.

When coeducation came the staff decided the magazine should be more than woman's work and a change in name was indicated. A campus-wide contest was held. Such contributions as Butler's Beautiful Bohemian Book, The Cash Box and Campbell's 57 Varieties were received but rejected because of their fleeting appropriateness. Then Talaria flew in meaning the wings on the feet of the messenger god, Hermes, but the staff interpreted it as a message from the gods and took it as the new name.

Revision within the covers of the magazine followed and the introductory page about the issue's authors was changed from "People on These Pages" to "Mortals on These Pages." Artes now titles the book-reviewing section.

The first issue of the Talaria was dedicated to Barbara Dale, a member of the art staff who was killed in an automobile accident.

Men infiltrated the ranks of the staff although the knife for cutting copy was still held by a member of the fairer sex, Editor Laura Lee Butler, with Barbara Beckman ably assisting as associate editor.

Copy Editor Lemoyne Cash surveyed each contribution with the eagle eye of a walking grammar book, while editorial assistants Dal Albritton, Alicia Armstrong, Barbara Byrnes, Jean Douglas, Ruth Mary Bliss, Cynthia Jo Schumaker, Joyce Petty and Betty Wilkison conferred about its journalistic merits. Miriam Portnoy as Business Manager defied the subversive elements on campus and kept the publication out of the red.

An increase in art work was the result of a corresponding increase in budget, thus the magazine is able to act as more than a medium for poetry and prose. Members of the art staff, Lucy Feiden, Rol Wood and Donna Farmer brushed up on their talents with results that should have pleased all the gods of Greek mythology. Jim Miller, Rosemary McCay and Miriam Bulkultz appealed to the "buy eye" of students with their attractive advertising layouts and Exchange Editor Betty Wilkison kept the fugitives from Mount Olympus in contact with the outer world.

With an increasing number of stories, poems and articles submitted by male students, The Talaria has presented a picture of our changing world at FSU in verbal form.

A new tradition, the Carnation Ball, was started this year with an eye-catching bevy of Alpha Chi's dressed in white wearing red carnation corsages. A trend brought about by coeducation was the "Hour Dance" each Friday night when local fraternities were feted. State Day for the Alpha Chi's was held this year in Lakeland. Not ghosts and goblins on Halloween, but a pledge party for the members provided a social pause that refreshes.

Enterprising new pledges present original pledge songs at the traditional Christmas party as well as preparing an unforgettable pledge circus party in January. A "Southern Plantation" formal dance climaxes the Pi Phi-Chi Omega weekend entertainment. The first Pi Phi-Theta "Powder Bowl" football game is received enthusiastically. Two visits from national officers and a Senior farewell bring closer the time for departure until next September.

SIGMA KAPPA

Sigma Kappa's resumed campus activities with a round of rush parties. Guests at the Winter Wonderland weekend and formal dance were greeted by the sight of a snow man in the front yard, an unusual scene in Florida! The traditional pledge Bowery Brawl surpassed the previous ones—or so the pledges declared. After dinner coffees and weekend festivities were scattered throughout the three quarters. The senior banquet, Halloween party, rushing in Gainesville, midnight serenades were a part of S K's frolics. National convention in Sun Valley, Idaho, will draw many sorority sisters this summer.

"Zeta memories will live always," as long as the magic of a favorite tune can bring back reminiscences of Mother Dodge's surprise parties or the fellowship at backyard weiner roasts. Remember the sight of the ZTA shield and the Sigma Phi Epsilon heart shining brightly over our "Golden Hearts" weekend festivities? Super-swish is the only word for the annual Stardust formal dance. "Heavenly Daze" sums up Panhellenic weekend activities. The silver cup for softball intramurals looks like it belongs on the mantel. Our favorite wheels, big and little, are Dalia, Ida, Beth, Audrey, Annie and B. C. Don't forget, the "huba huba's" caused by the Varga girl skit, the mother-daughter Christmas party, Ann Parrish's wide-eyed surprise as she was chosen queen of the Alpha Gamma Rho "Harvest Ball" at G'ville Fall Frolics, the farewell party for seniors—treasured recollections of Zeta Tau Alpha.

Panhellenic activities cruised to a stop after a full year of joint monthly meetings with IFC to plan in accordance with the new situation on campus—coeducation. Coeducation at Florida State University has brought the sororities closer, giving them outside interests instead of so much centered within their own groups.

The main project of the Panhellenic council this year has been a $140 benefit fund for a war orphan. Panhellenic weekend in April was climaxed by the traditional formal dance in the East Campus gymnasium. Couples whirled under brightly lit sorority and fraternity crests to the music of a local orchestra. Competitive sing was omitted this year by vote of the sororities.

Officers: President, Bruce Bolt, Alpha Theta Phi; vice-president, Harry Middlebrooks, Kuklos Adelfhon; secretary, Bob Lee Bannerman, Phi Alpha, and treasurer, Maxwell Wells, Chi Theta.

Representatives: Bob Wock, Gamma Phi; George Anderson, Delta Delta; Tom Wood, Beta Phi; and Harry Ryder, Pi Kappa.

The Inter-Fraternity Council was established as a coordinating unit among fraternities to cooperate with individual fraternities and the administration. Despite the numerous difficulties that arose from creating eight fraternities practically overnight there was complete harmony among all groups, making an almost impossible job possible. Pioneering under the guidance of the faculty committee: Dr. Broward Culpepper, Dean Otis McBride, Mr. Rod Shaw, and Mr. Herman Gunter, the IFC soon proved to be an efficient organization capable of self-management.

It sponsored the first IFC weekend, highlighted by a formal dance, at which Miss Kay Barker was selected first IFC beauty queen. She was the candidate of Phi Alpha.

The local fraternity, Alpha Theta Phi, was founded on the campus of Florida State University for the explicit purpose of becoming a chapter of Alpha Tau Omega national. The chapter was organized by eleven members of ATO chapters throughout the nation and has been visited frequently by national officers of ATO. Immediately upon becoming a chapter, likely candidates among the student body were rushed, with the result that seventeen students were pledged.

These members and pledges of Alpha Theta Phi have been active participants in all extra-curricular activities about campus. Bruce Bolt is president of IFC, Bill Meigs is chief justice of the Honor Court and had the male lead in "Night Must Fall" and Bill Walker led the cast in the Little Theatre production of "The Barrets of Wimpole Street."

Numerous social events this year have become pleasant memories: the weiner roast at Camp Tally-Ho, stag party at the Talquin Inn, house-parties in Carrabelle, first annual dance at the Tallahassee Country Club, I. F. C. weekend, alumni banquet at the Silver Slipper, and Valentine weekend in Gainesville.

The constitution of the fraternity was drawn up by the eleven original members and advocates scholarship, leadership, and brotherhood.

The Beta Phi Social Club was created on the FSU campus in the fall quarter of 1947 by twelve members of Phi Delta Theta.

Rapid strides have been made by Beta Phi during this school year in athletics, scholarship, journalism, politics, and other activities.

The initial rush period proved very successful. Many social functions were enjoyed then and afterwards. Due to the generosity of the "Betting" Phi Alphas, the entire Beta Phi social club and dates were given a party at the coast after a Beta Phi-Phi Alpha football game.

Bill Kratzert, Charles McMillan, and Jack McMillan were lettermen on FSU's first football team. Charles McMillan made the first touchdown in FSU's football history, and Jack was elected co-captain of the football squad.

Kratzert was high point man for the basketball season. Other Beta Phi's who played terrific ball as FSU cagers were Ben McCrary, Ronald Nettles, and Sheldon Hilaman. Kratzert was also a member of the University tennis team.

Arthur Cobb, the Beta Phi journalist, is famous on campus for "Cobb's Corner" in the "Flambeau."

At the time of publication, the Beta Phi's are far out in front in the fraternity intramural league and expect to finish on top at the end of the year.

Chi Theta fraternity was organized as a colony of Theta Chi fraternity officially on December 5, 1947, following a period of organization, rushing, and pledging. The original membership totaled fifteen men, but this was soon built up to the present number of thirty.

The first fraternity dance to be given at Florida State University was given by Chi Theta in December just prior to the Christmas holidays. Since this beginning the fraternity has given informal parties on several occasions. During the Inter-Fraternity weekend Chi Theta's were active participants in all events. They were represented in the beauty queen contest during that week end by Miss Nan Monroe. On Friday night of the IFC weekend the fraternity gave a weiner roast on Lake Bradford.

Chi Theta has shown up well in fraternity intra-murals, holding second place at the time this book goes to press.

The "house" on West campus is still in the process of redecoration, but should be completed within the very near future. The Chi Thetas are all looking forward to many good times at the "house" in the future.

The fraternity has adopted a policy of holding informal dinners every six weeks, at which time a talk will be given by a distinguished person. At the first dinner of this nature Dr. Doak Campbell was the principal speaker.

To quote one Chi Theta: "Even though our past is not full of spectacular events, our future shines brightly, our aspirations are high, and our spirit is very good. You can look to Chi Theta fraternity in the future."

Delta Delta colony of Delta Tau Delta, like all other fraternal colonies on campus has undergone all the phases of hasty development towards concrete growth and activity.

Fortunately there were four Delta actives on campus: Charlie Anderson, George Anderson, Clifford Shuman, and Perry Watson. They initiated the formation of a Delt Colony by organizing an embryonic active group for the purpose of stimulating official interest and recognition.

The first rush season ended satisfactorily with a total of eleven pledges. Since then individual rushing has progressively added thirteen new pledges.

During the winter quarter the Delts acquired one of the more substantial buildings at the base for a chapter house. Subsequent improvements in the addition of a terrace and painting have contributed much toward an appropriate background for social and fraternal activities.

Various stag, rush and date parties have enhanced the fellowship and group interest of the colony. The Delt formal in March at the Tallahassee Country Club highlighted the social activities.

The success of all fraternal circles depends on fraternal cooperation. So far collective fraternal effort has been successful. With temperance, simplicity, and well-directed effort Delta Delta hopes soon to secure national affiliation, thus consolidating a stronger position from which to develop in and with Florida State University.

The Kuklos Adelphon fraternity, founded September 1947 at FSU, is a local colony of the Kappa Alpha Order. Kuklos Adelphon patterns its ideals after those of Kappa Alpha Order which were inspired by General Robert E. Lee.

In the short time of its establishment on campus, K. A. has been active in both social and athletic functions. The fraternity won the intramural football and were runners-up in both basketball and ping-pong. Its social functions have consisted of a banquet for visiting members from Gainesville, a beach party for the fraternity and participation in the IFC weekend. The fraternity held its first annual formal dance in May, 1948.

In the fall of 1947, a group of four Pi Kappa Alpha men got together to form a chapter on this campus. These first four were Joe Clark, Kenneth MacLean, Harry Ryder, and David Wilcox. A rush week was held in November and a group of twenty pledges were chosen and the local colony under the name of Pi Kappa was established.

Since that time, the fraternity has been through a lot. Starting off the first weekend of the winter quarter with a formal dance at the country club and taking part in all intra-mural sports and many campus activities, the members and pledges have been busy establishing the name of Pi Kappa on the campus. The worst luck that befell the fraternity was when drawing for barracks, they drew the one that had recently burned. A lot of time and effort has been spent remodeling the barracks and putting it in livable condition.

The Pikes have had representatives in some of the University's sports. These include Ken MacLean, Fred Boris, football; Buddy Norris, swimming; and Bob Jarrett, tennis.

The fraternity hopes to go a long way on this campus by working with and for the university.

Gamma Phi Colony was founded in October, 1947, by Edward W. Campbell and Robert Wach, two local Phi Kappa Tau members, through the capable assistance of the Phi Kappa Tau alumni living in Tallahassee and members of the Alpha Eta chapter Phi Tau in Gainesville. Several rush functions were held at various homes of the alumni in town. The fraternity's ranks slowly swelled until its present-day size.

At first, like most of the fraternities on FSU campus, it was hard to get a fraternal feeling and spirit without the close association gained from a fraternity house. However, finally the university turned over barracks 623 to be remodeled into what has become Gamma Phi manor.

The biggest social function of the year was a hobo dance given in February on Friday, the thirteenth at the West Campus student union. A huge success, the dance went far towards breaking the tradition of formal and semi-formal affairs. The rest of the year was spotted with various small and local parties: ie, hay rides, picnics. For I. F. C. weekend, the Gamma Phi's entertained at a barbecue supper.

Yes, baby is growing up, and the Gamma Phi's look forward to becoming a local chapter of Phi Kappa Tau.

Who will buy my violets?

In the fall of 1947 a group of twelve Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity men, who were at that time enrolled at FSU, decided to start a local fraternity in hopes of later becoming a national chapter of SAE. Along with seven other fraternities they were officially recognized in December of 1947.

During the two weeks' rush period the fraternity gave several rush parties at the homes of various members and a spaghetti supper at Lafayette Park. The Phi Alpha men are very proud of the fact that they received 100% return on the bids issued after the rush period.

Since that time a barracks has been acquired for a fraternity house and the members and pledges have been hard at work remodeling it into a "home."

At the first annual IFC weekend the fraternity was honored by having as their representative, Kay Barker, who was selected as the first IFC beauty queen.

Lock up the gates of heaven, boys

The following week the fraternity sent six delegates to the biennial SAE Province Convention. At this convention the local fraternity received unanimous approval of the convention to petition the national convention for a charter.

Leadership, scholarship, service: these are words which become a living part of our campus activities through Mortar Board's emissaries, the twenty members of the Torchbearer chapter. No matter what their field of study, their work is predominated by a love of learning. They are the ones who find time to serve and give of their knowledge. A study clinic was conducted by Mortar Board this year to give those students who needed it extra instruction. Dropping the role of the intelligensia, members donned dungarees and energetically sold cokes at various campus athletic events as their money-making project for the year.

"May I have this dance?" And if it's with a Cotillion Club member you may be sure that it will be a pleasure. These danceable date-baits have a way of stepping out in a waltz or a samba or any other dance routine. Dancing classes open to all students are conducted throughout the year by Cotillion Club members and they sponsor and serve as hostesses at campuswide dances. Members are chosen for their ability to execute the various steps both leading and following.

VILLAGE VAMPS

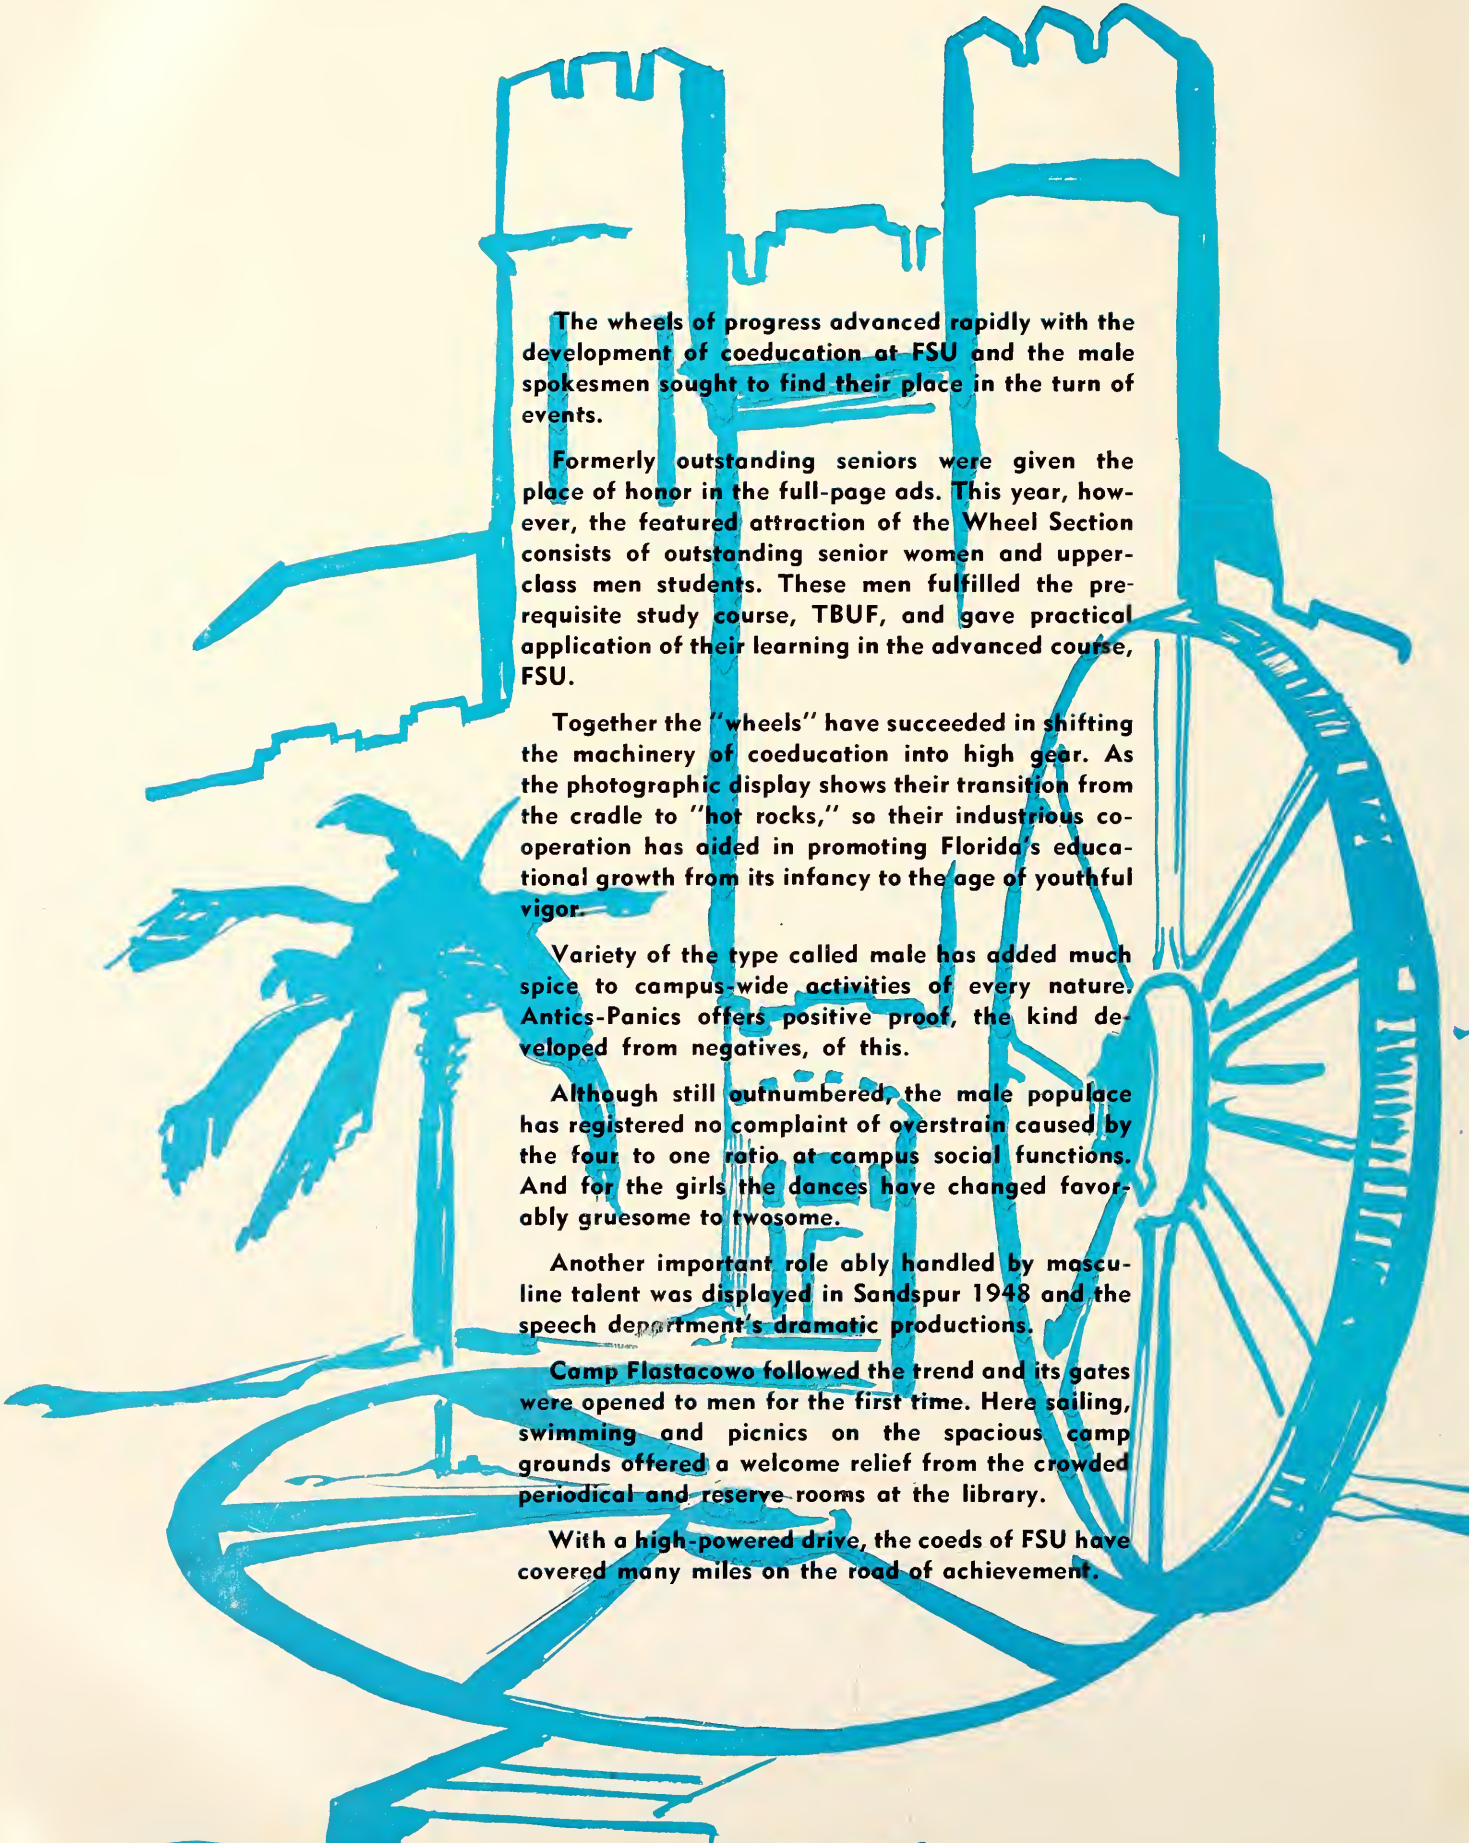

Arabia has its shieks but FSU has the Village Vamps. These campus cuties with poise and personality A-plus are the official hostesses for campus social affairs. Membership, formerly confined to certain sororities, was extended this year to include the entire freshmen class. Tapping was on a three per cent basis. The Vamps are chosen for their attractiveness, poise, personality and vivaciousness.

ACTIVITIES

The wheels of progress advanced rapidly with the development of coeducation at FSU and the male spokesmen sought to find their place in the turn of events.

Formerly outstanding seniors were given the place of honor in the full-page ads. This year, however, the featured attraction of the Wheel Section consists of outstanding senior women and upper-class men students. These men fulfilled the prerequisite study course, TBUF, and gave practical application of their learning in the advanced course, FSU.

Together the "wheels" have succeeded in shifting the machinery of coeducation into high gear. As the photographic display shows their transition from the cradle to "hot rocks," so their industrious cooperation has aided in promoting Florida's educational growth from its infancy to the age of youthful vigor.

Variety of the type called male has added much spice to campus-wide activities of every nature. Antics-Panics offers positive proof, the kind developed from negatives, of this.

Although still outnumbered, the male populace has registered no complaint of overstrain caused by the four to one ratio at campus social functions. And for the girls the dances have changed favorably gruesome to twosome.

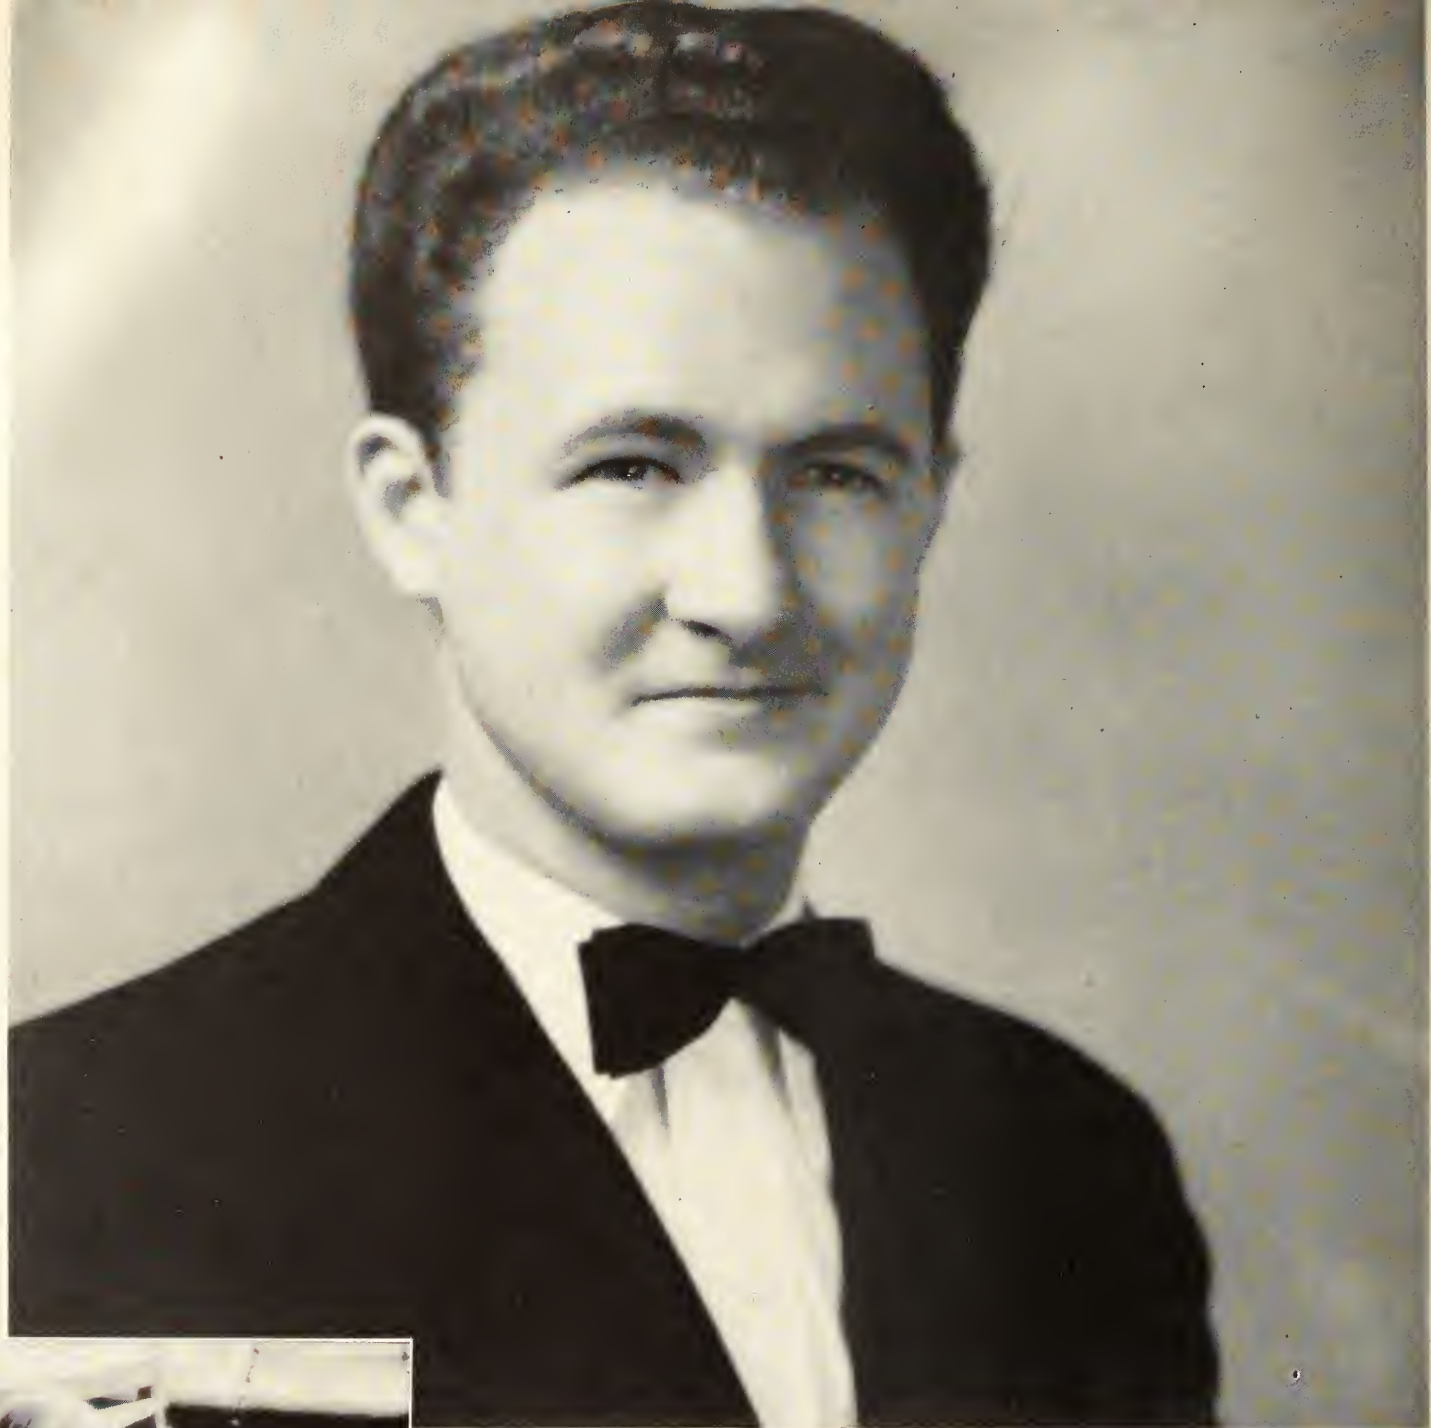

Another important role ably handled by masculine talent was displayed in Sandspur 1948 and the speech department's dramatic productions.

Camp Flastacowo followed the trend and its gates were opened to men for the first time. Here sailing, swimming and picnics on the spacious camp grounds offered a welcome relief from the crowded periodical and reserve rooms at the library.

With a high-powered drive, the coeds of FSU have covered many miles on the road of achievement.

Punch bowl waltz

BILL FUSSELL

"Shall we dance?" . . . the sharpstepping President of Cavaliers, new dance organization at FSU, Bill Fussell has led their activities with a syncopated rhythm. As an active campus politician, Bill was a leader in the organization of TBUF political parties. Another member of the married clan, Bill served on University Student Council. An active interest in all sports and campus activities, an alert awareness of national and international affairs—Bill is a student of mature foresight. Ever ready to advance coeducation in every way possible, he was a vigorous crusader for its inauguration.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

BILL MEIGS

With a multiplicity of activities and assets, Bill has achieved the distinction of being FSU's typical college man. Complete with cream convertible, corduroy jacket and horn-rimmed glasses, Chief Justice Meigs looks the part to perfection. But the association ends there for Bill has a mature approach to his studies and a steadfastness of purpose not usually characteristic of Joe College. Perhaps Bill's outstanding trait is one that's the most easily overlooked. His dependability is executed in such a calm and matter-of-fact manner that everyone has grown to take it for granted. Whether contributing to campus publications, the function of university government or the success of a campus dramatic production, Bill finds time to do everything well.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

CHRIS HOLLY

As head of Men's Senate and a member of University Student Council, Chris has been a valuable factor in our student government. He has served faithfully and efficiently both in representing TBUF last year and the male student body of FSU this year. Although very modest about his ability, Chris is quite the crooner. Tall, blonde and unquestionably handsome, Chris left the ranks of bachelorhood thereby creating a trail of pining hearts. A prominent campus figure, he has been an untiring worker for coeducation. Good-natured, friendly, capable—Chris Holley.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

RUFUS JEFFERSON

Anybody need a constitution, advice on parliamentary procedure or the legality of an action proposed by student government officials? Rufus Jefferson is right there with Robert's Rules of Order and a thorough knowledge of whatever constitution is in question—he probably helped write it. Jeff is active in politics, not verbally to a great extent, but in setting to and getting projects accomplished. As a member of the men's Honor Court and President of the men's Junior-Senior class, Jeff served efficiently and conscientiously. Friendliness and thoroughness of purpose—these are typical Jeffersonian traits.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

JOHN MATTMULLER

John "On With the Ball" Mattmuller waltzed through a successful year as Chairman of Men's Recreation Association and from the first bang-up university fall formal, his motto, Fun for All, took on an active meaning. Capriciously dubbed Moo by his friends, for obvious reasons, he managed to become a part of nearly every campuswide activity. As men's Sports Editor of the Tally-Ho and a member of University Student Council, Moo was always the center of a flurry of activity. An avid sports enthusiast and politician, he was a member of the original TBUF crew that set coeducation rolling.

WAYNE BELL

A Southern gentleman with a Southern manner and a Southern drawl—Scoop is happiest while hot on the trail of a news story. His first office at FSU was that of Assistant Editor of the Flambeau. Since his December graduation, he has made impressive advancements in his chosen profession and has been appointed to the editorial staff of the Daily Democrat. As secretary of MGA, Scoop was an efficient organizer and advancer of coeducation. A member of University Student Council constituted another important task of Scoop's. We could ask for whom the Bell tolls but that's a different Story.

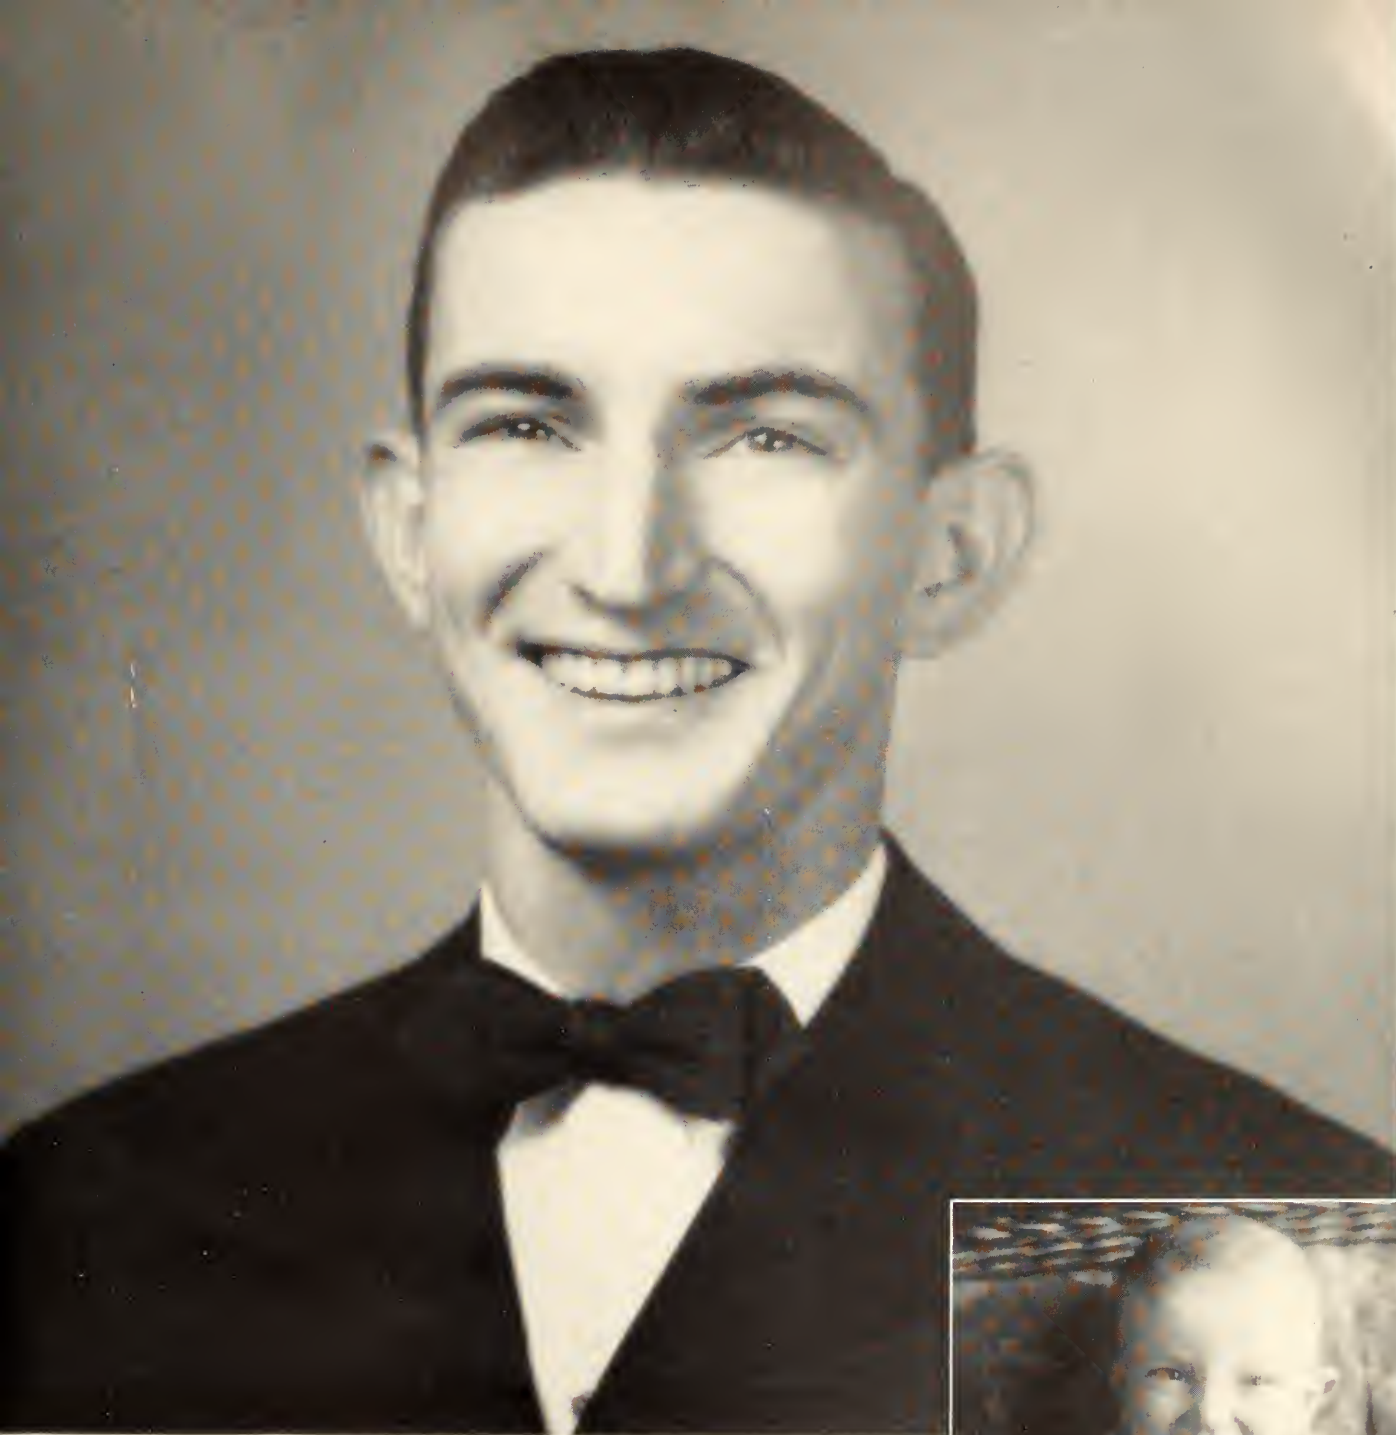

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

BILL QUIGLEY

"You've gotta be a football hero to get a date with a beautiful girl" . . . there can be no question about Quig's ability as a football player or his popularity with the feminine population of FSU. When not sporting about campus in his not-too-quiet Ford, he can be found skimming the lake in his boat—if they'll stay in running condition longer than five minutes. His contribution to athletic enterprises and all campus activities under the heading of "Advance Co-education" have made Bill a valuable part of campus life. Popular, athletic, sporty—Bill Quigley, an FSU favorite.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

CHARLES DYSON

For his deep interest and hard work in helping to organize the married students' government for their own village, Whispering Pines, Charlie Dyson is well known. His active representation of this group in the intramurals program was another expression of his interest. Numerous other campus activities have been ably accomplished by Charlie such as secretary of TBUF government, treasurer of MGA, member of MRA and University Student Council. Charlie can rarely be found not working on some committee. A sincereness of purpose predominates his every action.

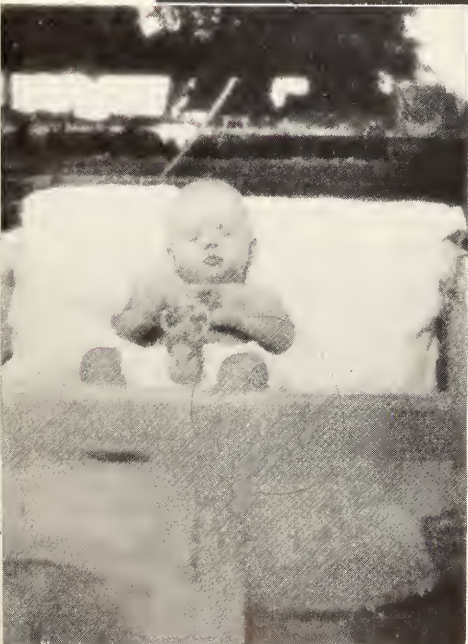

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

ARTHUR COBB

The Grantland Rice of FSU—Arthur Cobb's accurate sports predictions and his reviews of the various Seminole War Dances which appear in Cobb's Corner of the Flambeau have been of interest to fans, be they student or faculty, all year long. A journalism major, Art does not confine his writing exclusively to the campus. Several of his sports reviews make appearances in the West Florida Sportsman. During his FSU sojourn, he has also capably served as a senator of MGA. With a mature, professional and serious approach to his work, Art is respected and admired by his fellow students.

JAMES TIPPIN

"When in doubt, smile" . . . Tip armed with an abundant good humor is a walking example of "How to Win Friends and Influence People." As a freshman of TBUF, he campaigned untiringly for the cause of coeducation. A member of the original team which succeeded in chalking up the high score that totaled FSU, Tip served as a member of the Men's division of the Flastacowo last year. One of the less vehement politicians on campus, Tip lets his quiet efficiency speak for itself. As managing editor of the Tally-Ho, he has played well the role of good-natured arbitrator. Always ready to serve on committees or do any task assigned to him, you can be sure he's "Tippin" the scales at mighty fine.

BUDDY PALMER

The punch of any party—that's Buddy Palmer who has the distinction of being FSU's prize punch manufacturer. When not busily brewing refreshments for parties, Buddy might be found working on what he optimistically calls an automobile. As a member of the Men's Recreation Association, he was the source of many novel ideas—a few of which were acceptable. Friendly and popular, Buddy has the gift of a winning smile. An ardent supporter of co-education, active in sports and other campus activities—Buddy has no limits to his interests.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

BUCK VOCELLE

The "My Friends" man of FSU, Buck is rarely seen without his soapbox. His active interest in politics is not confined to campus elections. He readily joins any and every campaign which shows a possibility of interesting conflict. Buck was happiest perhaps while arguing for coeducation—a campaign he could really get wrapped up in. A member of the Student Senate for two years, Buck worked hard and efficiently on every project undertaken. Vice-President of the Newman Club, member of the swimming team, in the freshman class—Buck manages to do an amazing number of things and never lose his boundless enthusiasm.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

PHIL ROUNDTREE

President of MGA and captain of the football team—an impressive collection of spokes for any wheel. Phil Roundtree has energetically shouldered a great share of the work in the advancement of coeducation, both on the gridiron and in the field of student government. A resident of Whispering Pines, Phil has successfully combined college life and married life. Work on the University Student Council is another of Phil's many activities which he executes with a calm capability and conscientiousness. Sports-minded and school-spirited—Phil is an asset to FSU.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

DALIA SANTOS

A contagious giggle, sparkling 'Bambi' eyes, this is Dalia in a gay mood. Perhaps she has just floated out on the dance floor as part of a Prom Court, or is relating the tale of her mid-winter swim complete with topcoat. In any event, this is the effervescent, carefree Dalia. The other Dalia is the serious soft-spoken president of U. G. A. who has commanded our respect by skillfully coordinating old ideas with the new into a smooth functioning coeducational student government. There is a quiet strength in her manner which inspires confidence in her ability to handle any situation whether it pertains to her work as a Judiciary member or to the problems which arose while she wielded a mean gavel as chairman of Senate. This synthesis of the imp and the impeccable is Dalia Santos, charming, lovable,—unforgettable.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

IDA LEE RENTZ

A capsule of energy labeled Ida Lee Rentz charged on the F. S. C. W. campus in the fall of '44 to make a name for herself and to gain a wealth of friends. Her sprightly manner and cavorting coupled with a dramatic rendition of "Oh, Miz Scarlett" soon spread the legend of Rentz through the Freshman dornis culminating in her election as Freshman Number One—class president. Having proved her ability she again received the public stamp of approval as second vice-president of C. G. A. Many a blue jacket of Idie's regime will vouch for her success in this office. Torn between her love of service and her sober interest in medicine, Ida Lee exchanged public office for test tubes and settled down to intensive study in the line of bacteria chasing. Though a store of medical advice, Idie's best prescription is a dose of the Rentz personality followed by a warm laugh and an animated description of the thundering hoard of her nieces and nephews with snapshots if you appear interested. This pint-sized atom has proved herself a fine friend, a strong leader, and a good student. The world welcomes another useful citizen.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

MARTHA PEACOCK

“Conservatism and liberalism? Why they are sociological terms expressing man’s struggle to overcome cultural lag,” and so they are—for Martha Peacock. Martha is essentially Martha, concerned, true, but uninvolved in charge. A liberal giggle, a conservative, “I’d love to, but—,” and an unclassified, “You-all.” Martha is Old World Charm and Culture as Senior Class president, a reckless young modern behind a steering wheel. “I do what is expected of me,” whether it is to write a hundred page theme, or give a party for Mortar Board, or get up promptly at seven every morning. Martha is easily a mixture of old and new, but not consciously. Although sociological and political trends merit her attention, her ideals are her own, and she expresses them by the neatly framed mottoes hung in her room. Significantly, Martha has a 1928 Model A Ford upholstered in a suggestive red.

PEGGY STANALAND

It's half-past coffee making time and Pep comes loping down the hall, coffee pot in hand, paving the 'grounds' for another hilarious Senior hall get together. The eternal comic-Pep percolates with enthusiasm whether it's for a good time or for a serious discussion of the future responsibilities of the education woman (in the vernacular, After College-What!) In recognition of her distinguished service as class marshal, she has been immortalized in song, to wit, "As Pep led in the Seniors with a hoochie-coochie dance to the tune of Pomp and Circumstance." A steadfast Baptist student worker, Pep mirrors her own deep religious convictions in her everyday living. A love of good fellowship, good teamwork, and good fun takes a predominant place in her bigger-than-life-size heart. Pep Stanaland will always aim high and shoot straight.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

AMARENE THOMPSON

Tommy, our stabilizing influence offers a calm oasis in the midst of the confusion and turmoil. Her strength of character and self-effacing manner demands the utmost respect of others. Because of her exceptional understanding of human nature and humble desire to give unstintingly of herself, Tommy's contribution as a Judiciary member has been an inestimable one. A quiet sincerity crowns her every move. She takes a conscientious pride in her work, and you can count on it being a job well done if you give it to Tommy. As the capable and hard-working chairman of this year's youth conference, she accomplished the strengthening of the purposes of Christian living in our campus activities. She works with a zealous energy that is inspiring to all her associates. The attributes of warmth, understanding, and sympathy combined make Tommy the perfect friend.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

FRANCES CANNON

"The wheel"—and there is no wheel who is more embarrassed to be called one—Frances Cannon. There is some agitation afloat to change her title to "the weekend guest" because every Friday Cannon and the Cannonball (the green Ford with the personality) are sure to be charging out to lodge with their friends for a day or two. Cannon deserves to graduate as a junior-counselor cum laude, having been a counselor in the Lodge, which expression means that she had about five times as many Freshmen as the average counselor. Surviving this, encouraged her so much that she became Freshman Advisor in her Senior year with approximately 1,100 little beast to guide. Someday, with the help of Winston's Collegiate Dictionary, Cannon will spell a name for herself.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

JEAN SHARER

Our own Jean Sharer is the possessor of sensitive soul as the final result of having adapted herself to change. In the old days of conservatism she was wisely a comedienne; "I'm Carmen of Tampa" But she bided her time and as the excitement of liberalism made itself felt, she sprang to the front like the leader of the cult to become an executive; "We will shoot at sunrise those members of the Annual staff who do not have their work in." At last, when modernism had assured itself a place at F. S. U., she, feeling her mission accomplished, retired to the ivory tower to become the sensitive soul; "Let us sit out in the sunshine and read Horace." Jean Sharer has a rare capacity for friendship, an ability to like and be liked. Certain jeanshareristics belong to her alone, as, for example, her habit of planning her wardrobe around the colors of her various socks, her artistic talent which stamps each of her drawings as her own, and her vehement claim to being born on Groundhog's Day. These things she has clung to in a changing world.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

GEORGIE MARION JAECKEL

"We move forward with organization," Georgie Marion's sincere desire to set everything in working order. Her marvelous ability to organize her extra-curricular activities coupled with her equally marvelous inability to find her glasses depicts Georgie accurately as she progresses onward, making a card catalogue out of a jumbled world. The midnight ghost most often seen wandering in the dormitories between the hours of midnight and three A. M., she may be identified at these hours by an onion sandwich tightly clasped in her hand or by the morose Cindy, a scottie dog who follows her around. The center of information on campus, G. M. is able to provide any collegiate data from a summary of the constitution of student government written in phonetic symbols to a rapid resume of the past history of Even Demonstrations. Georgie is a person of many moods, sometimes a gay party promoter, sometimes a melancholy musician, but always friendly, always hoping that order will be resolved out of chaos.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

IRMA LEE SHEPHERD

Endowed with a strong respect for human integrity, Shep will long be remembered for her ability to understand faults and to strive earnestly for their correction. As Chairman of Judiciary she found expression for her ideals in the calm and sincere guidance she gave to her fellow students. Deeply woven into her convictions is a loyalty to the school she serves. Her genuine love for people coupled with good sportsmanship enable her to play the game fairly at all times. Serious and whimsical—she harbors a wealth of unexplored intellectual treasures. A gay alum of the infamous fifth floor Gilchrist, Shep has ingeniously combined the light side of college life with the scholarly—the intangible memories with the tangible Phi Beta Kappa key. The dreams of a poet and the joie de vivre of a clown give Shep that rare personality which can adapt itself to any situation. A mature competence in scholastic work, a fervent love of literature and music, her devoted church work—these all add to the respect which FSU holds for Shep, our lost angel with a guiding star.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

MADGE PILCHER

Everything that Madge does is done well, few people realize how much she has done. The soft voice and wide-mouthed grin are deceiving. Madge is the only living Flambeau editor who doesn't eat aspirin for dessert. During the Thursday night chaos when the Flambeau is "put to bed" she maintains her quiet but distinctly authoritative control over the proceeding. With an alert awareness of a changing university's needs, she has sought to coordinate the old and the new through indefatigable campaigning. But Madge has another side, too, it is that of the accomplished musician. She has unselfishly lent her talents to the campus productions, willingly taking over the drudgery of training eager but untalented choruses. The results are amazing—filled with soft harmony and beautiful tone shades. Madge's untiring crusade for change has distinguished her as a person of firm and fine convictions—the woman of tomorrow.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

JO ANNE WHITAKER

With a drive in everything she undertakes as forcible as that she wields with a golf club, Bopie is always the one to set the pace. She distinguished herself early in her college career as an athlete of multiple ability and culminated her sports activities by becoming the Woman's Amateur Golf Champion of Florida. This spirit of true sportsmanship which permeates Bopie's character has been the keynote to her successful leadership as an inspiring F club president. Bopie has shown a thoroughness of purpose in her every undertaking from an intense interest in her pre-med course to her riotous cavorting at camp. Bopie's flair for originality successfully lent itself to her unforgettable performance as court jester in the May Day festival of '45. Bopie will drive straight down the fairway of life until she hangs up that coveted shingle bearing the magic words, Doctor Jo Anne Whitaker.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

DORIS DuBOIS

A diligence of purpose marked by simplicity has attained for Dodie the goal of a well-rounded college life. Her competent skill in sports and efficient capability for high scholarship combine to form an ideal "femina perfecta." Always on hand to whip up one of her fabulous concoctions, she seems to make ordinary food taste so different. We remember her amused tolerance while living in the midst of the wild Sophomores on Gilchrist's riotous fifth floor. A quiet mirth, a cooperative spirit, and an analytical approach to new ideas—these are the ingredients of her likeable personality. What better post-graduate work could follow for Dodie than the practical application of her home economics study? With an abundant capacity for living, she is bound to have a marriage as ideal as her college life.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

CONNIE SAVAGE

BABS McCARTHY

With an eye to the future and what's wrong with Florida politics, Babs is an ever progressive member of Dr. Irish's political science class. She has a salt and pepper personality—the seasoning in any deep discussion. Babs is always searching for the fundamentals. Her favorite expression "I'm deeply rooted" perhaps best sums up her character. Babs is deeply sincere whether it concerns a judiciary problem or "F" Club goating. Her keen mind, logical reasoning and strong humanitarian approach make her the ideal court member. Babs has proved capable of handling the responsibility placed on her by her fellow students. Her leadership has been repeatedly recognized from Freshman class treasurer to Chairman of Off Campus. But there's a sunny side to Babs too. Her teasing smile and warm-hearted charm surround her with friends eager to hear of another McCarthy escapade or a fascinating account of summer capers. Babs is indeed a well-rounded individual—a woman to watch—a woman of great expectations.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

ANNE FIELDING

Anne Bright Fielding sailed aesthetically through four years of college perusing "Archie and Mehitable" or "Obscure Poets of the 15th Century" with equal interest. A paradox of wit and intellectuality, Anne has raised the corn of many scripts to a high plane of subtle humor. When Odd and Even Dem were replaced by the Sandspur, Anne quietly donned her seven league Girl Scout shoes and led a tour through Florida in an effort to make the Sandspur stick. Having triumphed in the battle of the B. P., Anne exchanged her big stick for an ADPi gavel and retired to her boudoir to polish an ever-increasing collection of honorary baubles. Not content with an English major and an abundant supply of quotations, Anne sampled other departments. She alternately quenched her thirst for knowledge in "Spring Flora" and in the unfathomed depths of the Photography lab. When Anne receives her three point discharge, she will sign a long term contract that affords pleasant working conditions with a compatible partner.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

ANNE MacINNIS

"Yes, I think so too," Annie Mac is so agreeable that it takes one some time to realize the steadfastness of her principles and opinions. A conservative, but not on the defensive because only conservatism which is not thought out clearly requires a constant defense. Annie Mac is thoughtful. She claims the rare distinction of having been a "sweet" F-club goat. Much credit is also due her for having been president of Magnolia Hall when it was simply "New Hall," three-fourths completed with strategic doors missing and residents feeling as if they were living in the back yard of the campus. From house-president of the newest dormitory on campus, Ann became house-president of the oldest (psychiatrists, please note). In her senior year when most undergraduates feel that they deserve to be turned out pasture, Anne, with that amazing capacity for enjoying work, became Chairman of the upperclassman court. When not in the U. G. A. room, she may be located on Senior Hall singing her favorite song, "Leprosy."

ELAINE GAVIGAN

"Lightning-bug" might best describe Gavy's streak of fire on the soccer field, much to the delight of her classmates, most of whom are feeling anemia after four years and would like to know the secret of Gavy's success. The guiding light of W. R. A. as its president, who beams proudly as she gives out "F's" in assembly. A live wire campus-conscious person, who has served on committees too numerous to mention except in logarithmic terms, and countless sport teams. As a member of house council while floor-chairman, she stepped slightly out of character, however, for she giggled during meetings. We regret to say that the research staff of the yearbook states flatly that lightning-bugs do not giggle. Still Gavy's energy sparkles; she seems like a lightning-bug with a delightful personality, research staff notwithstanding.

WHEELS-WHEELS-WHEELS

CAROL CLAUS

There is a dignity about Carol which marks everything she does. She is the only girl we know who can roll up her hair during a meeting and yet be poised. We might add that as president of Tarpon Club, she spends roughly fifty per cent of her time in swimming, and hence is justified in rolling up her hair at odd moments. Carol's quietness is deceptive; her strong determination and her delicate sense of the ridiculous are apt to come as a surprise. The high point of a meeting which has degenerated into futile argument comes when Carol stalks out in disgust. She was the kindly Esteren goat-trainer who tried to look stern and deceived nobody. She has rocked Senior Hall by saying that she is tired of being a nice wholesome girl, but just the same Carol goes on being one of the nicest, wholesomest girls there are.

JIMMIE ROGERS

"I read it in Harper's only yesterday." Jimmie is an outstanding example of maturation as a continuous adjustment to one's environment. Conscious of the responsibilities of a citizen, not only in our changing college, but in our changing world as well, she is an avid reader of current literature, is always eager to enter a political discussion, and takes greatest delight in making plans for the biggest change of all—After College (which in Jimmie's case, is marriage with a capital M). She has the unique quality of putting people at ease, whether she's presiding over a large house meeting, leading the singing at Sunday School, or beaming ecstatically over a no-honor-count bridge hand. Jimmie's friends know her for her vivacity, genuineness, and her ideals that represent a constant step forward.

BETH FUHRER

"The Blithe Spirit" . . . This is Beth of the sparkling blue eyes and unforgettable laugh. The Fuhrer laugh and the bubbling sense of humor that goes with it are an ever welcome addition to any group. But behind Beth's vivacious personality is a girl capable of much work, as has been proven by the competent and invaluable contribution she has made while serving as a member of senate. Never hesitant to assert and defend her beliefs, she is sharp with rebuttal but too kind to condemn. Her Junior year was spent in the whirl of activities which always accompany the job of being an efficient class president. There is a deep and abiding earnestness about any task that she undertakes, and she performs even the most routine tasks with originality and individuality. Beth is the personification of loyalty, sincerity, and fidelity. Beth is the kind of person whom you are always happy to call your friend.

JUANITA KRENTZMAN

In every group there are a few rare persons whose integrity of character is sufficient to meet all situations. Such is Nita Krentzman, the conformer who conforms, not out of ignorance, but honest thought and consideration. Nita is dignity; Nita is quiet humor; Nita is warm friendship; Nita is one of the most highly respected and best liked girls in the Senior Class. Perhaps the best thing about Nita is that her virtues are too much a part of her to be oppressive. Only humor could have preserved that nicely balanced personality during two years as a dormitory president. Nita has such a rare sense of good taste that her wit is perfectly timed, always appropriate. The ideals of Mortar Board are well personified in their resident: leadership, Nita has served the school for four years; scholarship, Phi Beta Kappa her junior year; and character, honesty, sincerity, fairness, Nita Krentzman.

CATHERINE SULLIVAN

"Everywhere you go—little beasts!" Since her internship as a teacher, Sully has been acutely aware of the diabolical number of high school age children which inhabit Florida. Ever since Sully arrived complete with her quick wit, FSU has been acutely aware of her as the personality girl of her class. Sully quickly weighed down her white sweater with athletic stars until the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to F Club Members replaced them with an FSU emblem, the highest mark of sportsmanship. The famous "Itchy" of Even Dem of '45, her performance is unforgettable, in fact her friends often gather around her and say, (quoting her famous speech) "Tell us about the time that you picked up a common demoninator—". As president of Esteren, Sully was kindly dignity. She was ready to accept change in class spirit which addition in class gender brought about. In her spare time, Sully has maintained a deplorably high scholastic average; but fearful of her reputation, she keeps it quiet. Such a fine girl—it seems a shame to throw her to the little beasts.

ANNE SINGLETON

From the meek fireman in Freshman Carnival to the competent Treasurer of C. G. A.—with a short pause for Singleton identification. Yes, Anne has identified herself to her fellow students in her own quiet way. She hasn't beat the drum in any parades but has creep-walked through four years at Tally finding fun and friendship in hidden corners. Anne is dependable whether in a crisis or in doing a dull job. But when wit is in order the Singleton brain comes forward with the brightest of repartee. A fiend with convo plans—Anne has attempted to promote the most satisfactory scheme possible in the realm of family reunions. She has been a treasured member of the higher clan known as executive council and has successfully budgeted a transition year. Although a Library Science major Anne has filtered aesthetically through numerous literature classes and would have been mistaken for an English major were it not for the “do not talk to the librarian while the card catalogue is in motion” expressions that embryo librarians have. Anne is certainly another “highly spoken of” in the wheel of fortune.

ATHLETICS

As FSU tackled the immense task of mapping out the formation for a university athletic program, the student body set fire with the goal of "rahing" the football team to glory. Faced with the problem of no name for the players, students conducted an election with Seminoles whooping to victory over Florida Crackers and Statesmen.

Sports events continued to rate high in student interest as basketball, volleyball, swimming, golf and baseball teams swung into action throughout the various sports seasons of the year.

Although when the scores were Tallyed up, FSU was not exactly at the top—as a matter of fact, it was rarely even near it—the enthusiastic cheers for the home team prevalent at each event, composed a growing school spirit of far more value than overwhelming scores and nationally recognized athletes.

Continuing to be an essential phase of student activities, women's sports teams provided an outlet for the abundance of feminine athletic talent on campus. Intramurals and Odd-Even contests were participated in by a large percentage of the student body.

With many more big war dances ahead, the Seminoles are quickly learning the victory cry and in their trail follows a student body eager for the ensuing frays.

Football comes back!

A cheer for the Seminoles

FSU CHEER LEADERS

Out of a hundred vigorous hopefuls, ten FSU cheerleaders were chosen to support the Seminoles through the first football and basketball season of Florida State University. Ray Culbert was chosen chief stretchthroat by his concheerporaries. Together the group formulated their own cheers . . . beat Stetson, Florida State, beat Stetson . . . and thereby put a feather in their cap. Service beyond the CALL of duty included heading a snake dance through the campus and officiating at several pep rallies. Before each home football game the cheerleaders were on hand to decorate the goal posts. Though turkey and pumpkin pie beckoned, the pep squad was brave and stayed in Tallahassee over Thanksgiving to cheer the Seminole gridders to . . . no, not victory yet! Finally during the basketball season Big Chief Danford presented the faithful group with their official letter sweaters.

Presentation of "F" Club Membership

Two score and three years ago Stetson and Florida State College met on the gridiron. The survivors of this game waited forty-five years to see a return engagement. In recognition of the '04 team, Dr. Campbell presented the returning heroes with memberships in F Club. With the sound of "Beat Stetson, Florida State, Beat Stetson" rumbling in their ears, the old teammates wistfully took their seats to await the initial game of FSU's Seminoles. The Stetson-FSU game promises to become an annual event of pigskin rivalry. But perhaps next year transition will furnish a Hat check in the stadium.

BASKETBALL

The Seminole cagers started and ended the season with a bang. The team, coached by Donald Loucks, had a 5-13 won-lost column for the season. After taking Spring Hill and Troy State Teachers into camp, the Indians went on to lose 13 in a row. They ended the season with consecutive wins over Stetson, Southern and Erskine. The FSU hoopsters played some of the better small college teams in the South with Mercer and Wofford being on the 18-game schedule. Bill Kratzert was the team's leading scorer with 164 points for the season.

At the close of the season, 11 players and 2 student managers were awarded major letters.

THE 1947-48 VOLLEYBALL TEAM

VOLLEYBALL

As Florida State University is one of the few schools in the South who have volleyball as a varsity sport, the team had a limited schedule. Most of the Seminoles' opponents were YMCA teams who are "past masters" in the art of playing volleyball and therefore FSU was out of their class most of the time.

The Indians, who were coached by Dr. Danford, participated in three meets. They led off by finishing second in the State AAU meet in Miami. Then they journeyed to Montgomery, Alabama, for a meet with the Montgomery YMCA. There the Seminoles won 2 games and lost 8. In a triangle meet in Macon, Ga., FSU was beaten by one of the best volleyball teams in the South, the Macon YMCA.

The following men received letters and sweaters for the 1947-48 season: Newton Sayers, William Leonard, Walter Wells, Emerson Kramer, Al Bassett (captain), Leon Bowman, Leon Parsey, Robert Greene, Orri Blackburn, and R. L. Massey. Harvey Barber was the student manager.

Playing their home matches at the Tallahassee Country Club, the Seminole golfers met such formidable foes as Rollins, Stetson, Southern, and Emory.

Captaining the golf team was Eddie Andrews. Sonnie Tinney, member of the team, won recognition during the year by becoming state intercollegiate champion. Other members of the team included: Walter Wells, Hank Mercer, Bill Rice, Ralph Cowart, Richard Mead, and Jack Campbell.

The Men's Recreation Association was headed by John Mattmuller. Responsible for the main university formal dances of the year, the group worked to promote student interest and participation in the campus-wide social functions. In connection with the various men's classes, afternoon tea dances were given over a period of several weeks for the entire student body. An active coordinator of coeducational activities, MRA proved quite successful in its opening year.

Despite the fact that the weatherman was determined to turn each intramural activity into a swimming contest, spirits remained undampened and the largest turnout of students since the innovation of this program was witnessed this year. Over fifteen hundred girls representing the various dormitories and sororities on campus participated in the athletic teams. Junior physical education majors served as team leaders for the sports and officiated as referees.

The group totaling the highest number of points at the conclusion of the last contest is awarded the intramurals cup.

Men's intramural program was conducted similarly with contests between fraternities and barracks. Co-educational intramurals proved quite successful as tennis and bowling dates increased among the student body.
